

At Qualsys, we are actively monitoring and implementing all official guidance to protect the health, safety and wellbeing of all people and will continue to do so. To reassure you, there are currently no reports of coronavirus among any of our people.

Qualsys continues to take actions to proactively manage the impacts of COVID-19 with a focus on the safety and health of our employees, customers and partners.

Health and Hygiene

At Qualsys we take the health and wellbeing of our staff very seriously. Flexible working is standard practice at Qualsys, and staff members have been requested to work from home from 17th March onwards, until further notice.

We have requested that all staff follow the recommended advice as per the latest Government announcements.

Anyone who has travelled to an affected area, or who has been in close contact with an infected person, have already been asked to self-isolate for 14 days.

Hand sanitizers have been made available throughout the office for those who do need to go in.

Business Travel

Qualsys have requested that staff continue to work from home and following the latest Government announcement on 23rd March, has banned all business travel unless it is absolutely essential. This will remain under review, in line with the Government guidance and we will be in constant liaison with our customers.

Pandemic Response Team

Qualsys has been coordinating since January to manage its COVID-19 business continuity and response plans to support and protect employees, customers and colleagues across all geographies.

Over the past month, we have extensively tested our emergency planning and are confident in our ability to support our customers to the same high standard. Staff are trained to cover roles in all areas.

For further information please contact Kate Armitage, Compliance Director.

Official resources from the WHO, HSE and the NHS

Here's some helpful resources with information about the coronavirus and the simple steps we can all take to protect against it.
